

GED Testing

Isothermal community college offers nationally recognized assessments for students to obtain a state issued High School Equivalency credential in Orth Carolina. The high school equivalency assessments are recognized by the US Department of Education and cover the same content areas. Passing the complete battery of either of the assessments will lead to the same High School Equivalency Diploma issued by the North Carolina State Board of Community Colleges. Students who are 16 to 17 years of age must contact the Director of the College and Career Readiness for eligibility information.
